PREFACE.

WITH this volume our labours in collecting the Returns of Aliens in London, from the reign of Henry VIII. to the end of James I., are concluded. As usual, the vast quantity of Subsidy Rolls has given us the most trouble, many of them being in a decayed condition. Some were wrongly dated and described in the old lists; but all such mistakes, on being pointed out, have been corrected in the new official catalogues. In sundry cases, parts of one and the same roll, which had long been separated, have been brought together. Among other things, we met with two important assessments for the City of Exeter, which had been erroneously arranged under the head of London.

The State Papers of 1611 and 1616 contain two lists of the "trades exercised by strangers". The second list refers to a book of about 113 pages, which appears to have given their names, under the titles of their trades, but no such volume has been discovered. Particulars of the new trades introduced by the strangers are given in Dr. W. Cunningham's Alien Immigrants, p. 177.

The Remembrancia of the City of London, analysed by Messrs. Overall (pp. 134, 135, iii. 86, 89, 93, 99), contain some correspondence between the Privy Council and the Lord Mayor, from March to June, 1613. The Council wished to ascertain the names of many foreigners resident in the City who were "of no congregation," and therefore required the Lord Mayor to obtain returns of the names of the members of the French and Dutch congregations, and of all strangers not belonging to one or the other. The Lord Mayor replied that the ministers of the two Churches had made "certificates" of the members, but could not furnish the names of non-members, as they did not reside in the City. He was then requested to obtain, with the assistance of two Justices of the Peace for Middlesex, the names of all strangers dwelling in the suburbs on that side of the river; and a further "certificate" appears to have been made. None of these certificates have been discovered.

The Registers of the Dutch Church, however, supply several undated "catalogues" of its members. These are supposed to have been drawn up in or about the year 1617. One of them is arranged under the head of trades, and states the number of years each member had "dwelled here," except in the cases of those who had been "born in England". Many of the members are described as "poor householders". (See City Remembrancia, p. 259.) In the suburbs were many poor families and aged persons, who were relieved by the alms of the Dutch Church. The totals show that comparatively few of the strangers were single men, and some of these were merely "travellers".

It must not be inferred that all the Dutch strangers were poor. There are separate lists of many "Merchants," arranged as "strangers by birth," "free denizens," and "born in England," the names of their wives and the numbers of their children being stated.

Another return, in Dutch, gives not only the trades, the length of residence, and the numbers of children, but also the names of the places in the Netherlands from which many of the strangers came. Several other returns, in English, specify all the "handicraftmen strangers, members of the Dutch Congregation in London, with their wives, children, servants, and their continuance here"; that is to say, within the walls of the City, in Southwark, and in "the suburbs".

The Remembrancia (p. 411, iv. 140) contain a letter from the Privy Council, dated the 6th September, 1618, to the Lord Mayor, "requiring him to appoint two or three principal citizens in every Ward to take notice what strangers were remaining or dwelling therein, and to cause each of such strangers to set down under what Prince or State he was born, and to what sovereignty he belonged".

Accordingly we find, in a volume of the State Papers for James I., No. 102, "A True Certificate" of the strangers in London and the liberties, "and under the sovereignty of what prince they depend," compiled from "a view" taken by the Lord Mayor, under the direction of the Privy Council, in September, 1618. Though many of them had been born in the Netherlands, France, and Germany, nearly all acknowledged their "dependence" on "the King of England," or on "our sovereign Lord King James". A few still acknowledged the Kings of Spain and France as their sovereigns, and others depended on "the States". In some cases personal professions of allegiance are recited under a curious variety of forms. At the end the total number of strangers within the City proper is given as 837.

A summary of this return was edited by the late Mr. Durrant Cooper for the Camden Society (Vol. 82, pp. 23 seq.), but very inaccurately. The differences between it and the full text here printed are so numerous that it would be a serious undertaking to give particulars of them. Cooper's summary is quoted by Baron F. de Schickler, in Les Eglises du Refuge en Angleterre, i., pp. 394-401.

Another volume of the State Papers, No. 99, contains nine returns, dated September, 1618, of the strangers in Southwark, the Clink, Paris Garden, Newington, Lambeth, and Bermondsey. Their signatures and marks are written below most of the entries, but no professions of allegiance are here made, except by those in St. George's.

The marginal note "Aff'," which frequently occurs in the Subsidy Rolls of this period, refers to an affidavit made by the collector that the person assessed could not be found, or that he had no chattels. On p. 249 it appears that a certain stranger was "discharged of 8s. 4d. upon an affidavit (affidatione) that he is English born, and therefore not to be charged as an alien".

The State Papers of 1622 furnish two interesting lists of all French and Dutch Cutlers in London, Westminster, Strand, Southwark, and East Smithfield, who appear to have been summoned before the Alien Commissioners then sitting (cf. Remembrancia, pp. 260-62, and Alien Immigrants, pp. 174-76). There are other lists of "Joiners, Ceilers, and Carvers," prepared by the Master and Wardens of that Company; and, later, a list of Tallowchandlers. The names of more than fifty alien householders in St. Martin's le Grand are given in a paper supposed to have been drawn up in 1622.

The Remembrancia (p. 260, vi. 9) show that on the 1st April, 1623, the Privy Council "directed that the City should depute some able and fit persons to take a particular and exact note of the number, condition, and trades of all strangers and children of strangers, and of such English as served them as apprentices or journeymen," not only in the City of London but in all other cities, towns, and places, the magistrates of which were directed to assist the persons so deputed. No returns to this order have been found in respect of London.

A Dutch Church Register contains a certificate, made in October, 1624, of the names of many residents, probably members of that Church, in certain streets and lanes of the City, with the names of their wives, children, and servants.

In 1624 many "Merchants of the Intercourse," natives of the Netherlands, residing in the City Wards, were certified as being exempt from the payment of Subsidies. These are enrolled on the Memoranda Rolls of the Exchequer, King's Remembrancer, as pointed out to us by Mr. G. Fothergill. Other similar returns may be found on the same rolls.

The third Subsidy granted in 21 James I. was not paid in some cases till after the beginning of the reign of Charles I., but the Indentures of payment have been included in this volume.

Many certificates of non-payment of Subsidies have been printed from the "Lay Subsidies," and may be found, perhaps with others, on the Enrolled Subsidy Rolls.

Since the publication of the first two volumes of this work a number of additional returns have been discovered, and are appended to the present volume.

The first is a valuation of the lands and goods of the principal inhabitants of London in 1522. It includes a number of wealthy strangers, a few of whom were denizens, but as the King required a "loan," they all probably were compelled to contribute.

Next follow a number of assessments to Subsidies in Middlesex and Surrey, with a few in London, dated 1523-24, 1536, 1542-47, 1549-52, 1557-59, 1562, and 1564. It was remarked in the Introduction to the first volume that no returns had been found for the reign of Queen Mary; but we have now discovered two brief returns for the southern suburbs, dated 1557 and 1558.

The elaborate certificate made by the Lord Mayor to the Privy Council in 1568, quoted by Strype and Burn, as noticed in the first volume, has at length been found among the Lansdowne MSS., quite out of place. Had the catalogues to those manuscripts been properly indexed, we should have been able to print this important return in its proper place. It differs considerably from the extensive returns of 1567 and 1571, and consequently there was no option save to reproduce it at full length. A transcript was made by Miss E. Stokes for this Society, and the proofs have been examined by us.

The return specifies the number of strangers in each of the City Wards, and in certain Liberties adjoining; that is to say, in Westminster, Finsbury, the Clink, St. John's Street and Charterhouse Lane, Whitechapel, St. Giles's in the Fields, Hoxton, Blackfriars, the Fleet Yard, Bermondsey Street, the Duchy of Lancaster (the Savoy), Norton Folgate, East Smithfield, the Minories, Clerkenwell, Lord Montague's Liberty (St. Mary Overy's), Shoreditch, St. Katherine's, and St. Martin's le Grand. It further specifies their nationalities, occupations, wives, children, and servants, and how many of them belonged to the Dutch Church, the French Church, the Italian Church, the English Church, and "no church". Certain houses are particularly noted as being "pestered" or overcrowded, there being as many as from twenty to thirty aliens under one roof in a good many instances, and in one case fifty-three (p. 425). The total number of the strangers in the City was 4,106 (omitted by Strype), and in the Liberties and Westminster, 2,598; in all, 6,704.

The Lord Mayor made a separate return, now among the State Papers, of all strangers who had come to dwell in the City and the Liberties between the 20th March and the 30th July, 1568.

The State Papers further contain a list of aliens in London, Surrey, and Middlesex from whom loans were demanded for the Queen in 1590.

From Hamper's Life of Sir William Dugdale it appears that in 1651 Sir Simon Archer sent to Dugdale some "books" containing "Certificates" of all strangers dwelling in London in April and May, 1593, which gave details of their children, servants, and apprentices, to what churches they belonged, and how many English people they employed.

These books evidently formed a similar return to that of 1568, before noticed. Hamper made a few extracts from them in 1827, when they were "in the possession of Dugdale Stratford Dugdale, Esquire, at Merevale, Warwickshire". Both Mr. R. S. Faber, Honorary Secretary to the Huguenot Society, and ourselves have made several attempts to ascertain whether any such books are still extant, but unsuccessfully.

We cannot close without expressing our sense of the great loss we have sustained by the death of Mr. G. H. Overend, F.S.A., late Secretary to the Society, to whom this work owed its inception, and who manifested extreme interest in it up to the last. He suggested that some later returns of 1635, among the State Papers, should be appended to this volume as a kind of "addenda addendis," but they were found to be too extensive. They may, with any future discoveries, furnish materials for a supplementary volume. There is a similar return in the Remembrance (pp. 420-21, vii. 156, 165).

We are also grateful for assistance received from Mr. M. S. Giuseppi, present Secretary to the Society.

A Table of Trades and Occupations is appended, and at the end of the volume will be found an index to localities in and near London, as in the previous volumes. A selection of those connected with the "Book Trade" has been edited by Mr. E. J. Worman, for the Bibliographical Society.

A general index to the names of all persons and places mentioned in the three volumes is being prepared by Miss C. Fell-Smith, and will be published separately.

The Books containing these Certificates are probably the same which are mentioned in a Letter from Sir Simon Archer,* 10 June 1651:—'Looking for wast paper for you, I found these of London; you may see if they be nothing worth, (I have a great bundell of them), I will then send you the rest'. The Puckering Household Books were no doubt supplied by the same friendly hand; Sir Symon being Sir Thos. Puckering's Executor, and at that time residing in the deceased Baronet's Mansion, the Priory at Warwick. The connexion of John Dugdale, Sir William's father, with the Poulet Family, will account for some of the other Books; and those which relate to the Dugdales and Shustoke sufficiently identify themselves."

* Hamper prints this letter on p. 258. It was dated "Prory at Warr., 10 June, 1651," and addressed to Dugdale. The quotation by Hamper is part of a postscript.
